Race for State's Attorney for Will Co., Lively

With the primary but a few weeks away Republican candidates for county, state and national offices are preparing their forces for an intensive campaign which in some sections has started already.

In county politics this year chief interest lies in the race for the nomination for state's attorney, in which J. W. Faulkner and Hjalmar Rehn both Joliet attorneys, are entered.

Mr. Faulkner has been an active worker in Republican politics for the past 14 years but this is the first time that he has been a candidate for office.

J. W. Faulkner

While both candidates have been practicing for about the same length of time, Mr. Faulkner has had the advantage of his opponent in trial work.

As senior member of the firm of Faulkner & Faulkner the candidate for the nomination for county prosecutor has had charge of all the trial work of the partnership, civil and criminal.

He was admitted to the bar on December 15, 1911, and early in January 1912 began the active practice of law. Until November 1912 Mr. Faulkner was affiliated with the firm of Barr & Barr, when he opened an office for himself in Joliet and at Rockdale. He maintained the Rockdale office for three and one-half years, working there nights, until his practice became so heavy that he was compelled to devote all of his time to Joliet office.

When he left his practice to enter the navy where he held the rating of Chief Boatswain's Mate, and, because of his qualifications and training, was attached to the legal department of the navy.

Acting in this capacity he was the attorney for Lieut. Edwin L. Reed, who had charge of the vice clean-up staged by the government in Chicago. Mr. Faulkner conducted the prosecutions for the government. Later he was transferred to Kansas City as head of the navy's legal department for the district comprised of Kansas and parts of Missouri and Oklahoma.

Having lost but one case before a jury in the past two years and nine months, in the Will County Circuit court and the Federal District Court at Chicago, Mr. Faulkner has attained the reputation of being one of the most able trial lawyers in the county.

He was born in Joliet, November 5, 1890, and is a graduate of the Joliet grade and high schools. He obtained his law degree from the University of Illinois. His father was the late James W. Faulkner, a former member of the Will County board of supervisors and well known throughout the county.

Mr. Faulkner is a member of Harwood post of the American Legion, and is also affiliated with the Moose, the Elks and several Joliet Athletic clubs.

He makes but one promise to the voters, that if elected he will devote his best efforts to the duties of his office, accepting unservedly all the obligations and responsibilities that the place entails.

He is now making a tour of the county and will speak here soon it was announced from his headquarters in Joliet, today.

MOKENA MAN IS STILL IN PORT OF MISSING; A TRAGIC CASE

Wm. Hoffman, the young Mokena farmer who disappeared so suddenly and mysteriously a week ago Tuesday is still among the missing. All kinds of rumors were afloat that he had been found near Chicago, but they were without foundation. On Wednesday Deputy John Frisch of Mokena accompanied by Howard Beagley and George Aschenbrenner made a trip of 160 miles in search of Mr. Hoffman without any success. They visited Worth and a number of Chicago suburbs and places where he had been employed, but found no trace of him. This is the most mystifying and pitiful case which has been known in Mokena. Here is a young wife and mother without any kindred in a strange country with a big farm on her hands and with the husband and father missing as tho the earth had opened up and swallowed him. The little child now 15 months old, keeps calling for his "Daddy" and will not be comforted. The grief that has come to the tiny heart of this bit of humanity is growing as the days pass and his daddy fails to come home. He will not play and only keeps a constant vigil for his beloved father. He cries and keeps calling "Daddy." The wife and mother is distracted and heart broken.

The Central Detective Bureau in Chicago has been notified and every effort is being made to locate the missing man. Following is his description: Height 5 feet 8 inches; heavy hair; large blue eyes; weight 150 pounds; age 39 years; all front teeth of upper jaw gold filled. Some of the teeth of lower jaw are also gold filled. When he left home he wore a corduroy sheepskin lined coat with sheepskin collar, grey working shirt, light grey cap, black rubber boots, dark brown trousers and blue overalls. Anyone locating this man will do a great favor by notifying the Mokena authorities by calling Mokena 76.

VOTERS OF BREMEN TOWNSHIP

Don't forget that if you vote against John Bettenhausen on election day you are only voting against yourself. You can never return to him what he has done for you. If you elect one of his opponents you are only electing the old political machine, which means that we are also apt to lose our good supervisor who is a credit to our township. You are not in any way hurting Bettenhausen by defeating him because his record will always stand.

Bids Too Low; Church Not Sold.

A meeting of the trustees of the St. John Evangelical church was held Thursday night to consider the sealed bids for the sale of the old church building. Only two sealed bids were received and as they were for only $300 and $400 they were not accepted as the trustees feel the old church building should at least bring $500 as the lumber in it cannot be purchased for that price today. The timber is all sound and of good quality. The trustees feel they will let the matter rest for the time being and may later offer the building for sale again at a public sale.

Mokena Postmistress Gets Third Class Commission

Mrs. Daisy Lynk received her official third class post office commission from the postal department at Washington Tuesday. The local office was changed from fourth to third class last October.

FRANKFORT CAUCAUSES TO BE HELD MARCH 15

The Republican caucus of the town of Frankfort will be held at the Mokena public school on Saturday afternoon, March 15. The same afternoon the Peoples Party will have their caucus in the Pfleger hall. Candidates for a full town ticket will be chosen.

WEDDING BELLS RING FOR TINLEY COUPLE

Mr. Walter Stelter and Miss Esther Schultz were united in marriage at the Bachelor Grove Lutheran church Saturday, Rev. Wm. Greve officiating. A large number of guests witnessed the ceremony. The bride wore a beaded white canton crepe silk dress. Miss Verena Stelter, the maid of honor was attired in Nile green. The best man was Mr. Schultz, brother of the bride. A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Their host of friends extend best wishes.

Miss Esther Mesenbrink has been confined to her home with a sore foot for several days. Mrs. Utte who has been quite ill is slowly improving.

Where is Bill Scheer going with his wife? First she got a new dress and now a coat. Perhaps on a honeymoon, who knows?

Our post office looks fine. The artistic decorating job was done by a first class painter, Fred Schmiedeknecht and is now finished.

Mrs. Francis Rodin spent the week end in Chicago and says she had one good time.

The meeting and coffee of the Ladies Aid of Zion Lutheran church was well attended and if all the good things that were wished on Mrs. Firschau come true, she will keep her good dream forever and we hope so.

Mrs. J. Keleher went to Chicago, Thursday.

Mrs. Ethel Wannemacher had the Tinley Park Bunco Club at her home Thursday. It was also her birthday anniversary. Her friends extended their best wishes and hoped she would have many more. After bunco delightful refreshments were served.

The suspense is over for Geo. Stoeckman. She said "yes." So that is the reason for that broad smile he is wearing these days. His friends all extend their best wishes and congratulate him.

Several of our Tinley Park residents went to Mokena last Thursday to attend the funeral of Miss Cecelia Werner. The bereaved ones have the heartfelt sympathy of all their friends and neighbors and may they find their greatest consolation in Him who gives and takes again. So let us bow our heads and say "Thy will be done."

Mrs. Grosskop of Oak Forest visited Mrs. Wm. Scheer Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Goebel are glad they started the 500 club as they were the proud winners of the big prize. It must be nice to get all things new and now to put the finishing touches to it Mr. Firschau installed a new piano in the new home. May it afford them much pleasure.

Mrs. Henry Hick and Mrs. Mesenbrink spent Sunday in Chicago.

Mr. Chas. P. Hollstein and Geo. Lorenz have installed a radio and now it means grand opera and speaking while you are eating a cheese sandwich and drinking a glass of (ginger ale.)

The Hard Time and Leap Year party given by the Eagles in Blue Island last week was a great success, by the looks of Wm. Hasenpflug for when he mentions it, it is accompanied by one of his most pleasant smiles and then he tells you what a dandy time he had.

It is a good thing when folks get lost, they can find their way again. Last week Patsy Koehler and John Boeyer drove to Flossmore by moonshine and they were to return the same way, but some how the moon went under a cloud and when they did get home it was almost by sunshine, so young men next time you go take your light with you so the moon can't fool you.

100 YEAR OLD WILL COUNTY RESIDENT DIES

Mrs. Elizabeth French, Will County's centenarian, died Monday morning at her home in Peotone. About two months ago she celebrated her 100th birthday. Altho Mrs. French was partly blind, she had been in good health despite her 100 years and had a keen mind and memory.

She was born Jan. 15, 1824 in Devonshire, England. In 1849 she was married to Aaron French and shortly afterward, came to the United States, arriving in Boston, on June 17, 1849. In 1851 they came to Chicago and five years later to Wilton.

THE HAPPENINGS IN ORLAND PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE

The box social, entertainment and fancy work sale given by the children of District No. 134 was a great success. They cleared about $45. The children gave a very good program.

Marie Yunker was surprised on her birthday Saturday afternoon by all the school children of District 134. Her birthday being on February 29th, Leap Year, she only has a birthday once in four years.

To Whom it May Concern:

It has been rumored that I shipped milk in the night when the milk strike was on and that I was seen at the corner at 12 o'clock at night after my milk cans. I absolutely deny that I shipped any milk during the strike and furthermore I say bring me the man that says or can prove I did and we will have a little settlement of our own. Dated this 1st day of March A. D. 1924. Signed by Fred Yunker.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

Sunday School 9:30 a. m.
Morning Worship 10:30 a. m.
Evening service 7:30 p. m.
Choir rehearsal, Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

Spring is almost here and we are looking toward and planning for an increasing interest and attendance. Some have been sick and others kept at home because of the severe winter weather so that the attendance and interest has not been quite so high some weeks, but we have been pleased to have a part in helping to build up the church and school. Shall we not expect all to be back next Sunday and start the spring month right?

At the recent meeting of the Official Board a new program was planned and we expect that the church shall be both busy and interesting through the following months.

Next Sunday the Rev. Dr. W. L. Whipple will preach at the morning service. Dr. Whipple is the field secretary of the Wesley Foundation at the University of Illinois at Urbana. He will give a short talk on the work of the Wesley Foundation.

We have planned the special services for the Lenten period beginning with Ash Wednesday on March 5th closing with Easter Sunday, April 20th. Cottage prayer meetings will be held each Friday evening up to Good Friday and then special evangelistic services every night during Passion Week. Shall not all of our people make a very special effort to participate in all of these services?

The Debate last Sunday evening drew a very good sized crowd and proved very interesting and successful. The question was "Resolved, that the home is a more powerful institution for the development of moral and Christian character than the church." This was upheld by Miss Helen Briggs and Miss Iva Hanson, and denied by Mr. Clarence Beagley and Lester Mahaffay. The audience decided by majority vote that the affirmative should have the decision. But in the discussion which followed there were many strong contestants for each side. The congregation decided by unanimous vote that it was an evening well spent and that we should repeat such a service once a month.

Your attention is called to the services for the next two Sundays especially. This Sunday Dr. W. L. Whipple of the Wesley Foundation at the Illinois State University will preach at 10:30 a. m.

In the evening we will have a church night service. A Pot-Luck supper at 6:30, a social hour of interesting games, a devotional meeting and business meeting of the Sunday school board. Come.

The next Sunday, March 14th Rev. Chas. Bowers a cartoonist and "chalk talk" preacher will preach and draw illustrations on the board at both services. Don't miss it.

The Ladies Guild are planning to hold a "Food Sale" in one of the stores this Saturday. Find them. Buy something good to eat.

Town politics are boiling hot. The office of town collector is the chief bone of contention. Albert Habenicht is the latest candidate for this office.

MOKENA MAN HEARS OF RESTORATION OF THE "LOST LEGION"

Don C. Hall of Mokena, with others has been active in the interest of unfortunate ex-servicemen, has just received a communication from Washington, advising that the President has answered their petition favorably, and has issued a proclamation granting amnesty and restoration of citizenship to deserters from the army and navy whose offenses occurred between Armistice Day, Nov. 11, 1918 and the formal ending of the war. The proclamation was issued by and with the approval of Secretary Denby of the Navy and Secretary of War Weeks. The President's action will give great encouragement to citizens who are interested in the campaign for executive clemency for members of the "lost legion."

WHAT IS A LOGICAL CANDIDATE DEFINED?

What is meant by the term "A logical candidate"? This term can best be defined by saying that such a candidate to truly fill the real meaning implied in the phrase must be fully accepted to the seeking. He must have a knowledge of what the office requires of him, he must be of unquestioned integrity, be efficient, and have the interest not only of a certain class, but of all of his constituents at heart. A candidate who possesses all these qualifications is in a true sense "a logical candidate."

The large body of voters of the 11th congressional dist., are looking up to D. R. Anderson as a candidate who comes within the definition of what a "logical candidate" is and as such feel that he ought to represent this district in congress. Mr. Anderson is not making vain or rash promises and the voters of this district can feel assured that he will give them the best of representation if elected to this office. Remember the primary date, Tuesday, April 8, 1924 and cast your vote for Anderson for congressman.

"DROP YER GUNS!"

SYNOPSIS.—Solomon Binkus, veteran scout and interpreter, Jack Irons, pass through Horse Valley, New York, in September, 1768, to warn settlers of an Indian uprising. Jack is an educated young frontiersman.

CHAPTER I—Continued.

"Now we've got jest 'nough hoppin' to keep us from gettin' foundered," said Solomon, as he stood on the farther shore and adjusted his pack. "It ain't more'n a mile to your house."

They hurried on, reaching the rough valley road in a few minutes.

"Now I'll take the bee trail to your place," said the scout. "You cut across the meadow to Peter Boneses' an' fetch 'em over with all their grit an' guns an' ammunition."

Solomon found John Irons and five of his sons and three of his daughters digging potatoes and pulling tops in a field near the house. The sky was clear and the sun shining warm. Solomon called Irons aside and told him of the approaching Indians.

"What are we to do?" Irons asked.

"Send the women an' the babies back to the sugar shanty," said Solomon. "We'll stay here 'cause if their h'ar lifted, I reckon we kin conquer 'em."

"How?"

"Shoot 'em full o' meat. They must 'a' traveled all night. Them Injuns is tired an' hungry. Been three days on the trail. No time to hunt! I'll hustle some wood together an' start a fire. You bring a pair o' steers right here handy. We'll rip their hides off an' git the reek o' vittles in the air soon as God'll let us."

Mrs. Irons hid in the shed with the loaded guns.

Ruth Irons and the children set out for the sugar bush. The steers were quickly led up and slaughtered. As a hide ripper Solomon was a man of experience. The loins of one animal were cooking on turnspits and a big pot of beef, onions and potatoes boiling over the fire when Jack arrived with the Bones family.

A little later Solomon left the fire. Both his eyes and his ear had caught "sign"—a clamor among the moose birds in the distant bush and a flock of pigeons flying from the west.

"Don't none o' ye stir till I come back," he said, as he turned into the trail. A few rods away he lay down with his ear to the ground and could distinctly hear the tramp of many feet approaching in the distance. He went on a little farther and presently concealed himself in the bushes close to the trail. He had not long to wait, for soon a red scout came on ahead of the party. He was a young Huron brave, his face painted black and yellow. His head was encircled by a snake skin. A fox's tail rose above his brow and dropped back on his crown. A birch-bark horn hung over his shoulder.

Solomon stepped out of the bushes after he had passed and said in the Huron tongue: "Welcome, my red brother; I hear that a large band o' yer folks is comin' and we have got a feast ready."

The young brave had been startled by the sudden appearance of Solomon, but the friendly word had reassured him.

"We are on a long journey," said the brave.

"And the flesh of a fat ox will help ye on yer way. Kin ye smell it?"

"Brother, it is like the smell of the great village in the Happy Hunting Grounds," said the brave. "We have traveled three sleeps from the land of the long waters and have had only two porcupines and a small deer to eat. We are hungry."

"And we would smoke the calumet of peace with you," said Solomon.

They entered the house and barn and walked around them, and this, in effect, is what Solomon said to him:

"I am the chief scout of the Great Father. My word is like that of an old Flame Tongue—your mighty chief. You and your people are on a bad errand. No good can come of it. You are far from your own country. A large force is now on your trail. If you rob or kill anyone you will be hung. We know your plans. A bad white chief has brought you here. He has a wooden leg with an iron ring around the bottom of it. He come down lake in a big boat with you. Night before last you stole two white women."

A look of fear and astonishment came upon the face of the Indian. "You are a son of the Great Spirit!" he exclaimed.

"And I would keep yer feet out o' the snare. Let me be yer chief. You shall have a horse and fifty beaver skins and be taken to the border and set free. I, the scout of the Great Father, have said it, and if it be not as I say, may I never see the Happy Hunting Grounds."

The brave answered:

"My white brother has spoken well and he shall be my chief. I like not this journey. I shall bid them to meet the band. Returning soon, he said to Solomon that his chief, the great Splitnose, would have words with him."

Turning to John Irons, Solomon said: "He's an outlaw chief. We must treat him like a king. I'll bring 'em in. You keep the meat a-sizzlin'!"

The scout went with the brave to his chief and made a speech of welcome, after which the wily old Splitnose, in his wonderful address of buxkin and eagle feathers, and his band in war-paint, followed Solomon to the feast. Silently they filed out of the bush and sat on the grass around the fire. There were no captives among them—none at least of the white skin.

Solomon did not betray his disappointment. Not a word was spoken. He and John Irons and his son began removing the spits from the fire and putting more meat upon them and cutting the cooked roasts into large pieces and passing it on a big earthen platter. The Indians eagerly seized the hot meat and began to devour it.

In a letter Solomon has thus described the incident: "It was a band o' cutthroat robbers an' runyades from the Ohio country—Hurons, Algonks an' Mingoes an' all kinds o' cast-off red rubbish with an old Algonk chief o' the name o' Splitnose. They stuffed their hides with the meat till they was stiff as a foundered boss. By an' by they was only two that was up an' pawin' around in the stew pot fer 'nother bone, lookin' kind o' unsart' in an' jaw weary. In a minute they wiped their hands on their h'ar an' lay back fer rest. They was drunk with the meat, as drunk as a Chinese after a pipe o' opium. We white men stretched out with the rest on 'em till we see they was all in the land o' nod. Then we riz an' set up a hussle. Hones we could 'a' killed 'em with a hammer an' done it delib'rit. I started to pull the young Huron out o' the bunch. He jumped up very supple. He wasn't asleep. He had known better than to swallow a yard o' meat.

"NOK BUCKEYE. YOU COME WITH US," I SEZ.

"What was the women? I knowed that a part o' the band would be back in the bush with them 'ere wimmen. I'd seed suthin' in the trail over by the drowned lands that looked kind o' neevarious. It were like the end o' a wooden leg with an iron ring at the bottom an' consid'able weight on it. An Injun wouldn't have a wooden leg, leastways not one with an iron ring at the butt. My o' thinker had been chawin' that cud all day an' o' a sudden it come to me that a white man were runnin' the hull crew. That's how I gained ground with the red scout. I took him out in the aidge o' the bush an' sez I:

"What's yer name?"

"Buckeye," sez he.

"Who's the white man that's with ye?"

"Mike Harpe."

"Are the white wimmen with him?"

"Yes."

"How many Injuns?"

"Two."

"What's yer signal o' victory?"

"The call o' the moose."

"Now, Buckeye, you come with us," I sez.

"I knowed that the white man were runnin' the hull party an' I itched to git holt o' him. 'Gol ding his pictur! He'd sent the Injuns on ahead fer to do his dirty work. The Ohio country were full o' robber whelps which I kin o' mistrusted he were one on 'em who had raked up this 'ere band o' runnyades an' gone off fer plunder. We got holt o' most o' their guns very quiet, an' I put John Irons an' two o' his boys an' Peter Bones an' his boy Isrel an' the two women with loaded guns on guard over 'em. If any on 'em woke up they was to ride the nightmare er lay still. Jack an' me an' Buckeye sneaked back up the trail fer 'bout twenty rods with our guns, an' then I told the young Injun to shoot off the moose call. Wall, sir, ye could 'a' heard it from Albany to Wing's falls. The answer come an' jest as I 'spected, 'twere within a quarter o' a mile. I put Jack erbout fifty feet further up the trail than I were, an' Buckeye nigh him, an' tol 'em what to do. We skootched down in the bushes an' heerd 'em comin'. Purty soon they hove in sight—two Injuns, the two wimmen captives an' a white man—the wust-lookin' bulldog brute that I ever seen—stampin' erlong lively on a wooden leg, with a gun an' a cane. He had a broad head an' a big lop mouth an' thick lips an' a long, red, warty nose an' small black eyes an' a growth o' beard that looked like hog's bristles. He were stout built. Stood 'bout five foot seven. Never see such a sight in my life. I hopped out afore 'em an' Jack an' Buckeye on their heels. The Injun had my o' hanger.

"Drop yer guns," says I.

"The white man done as he was tol. I spoke English an' mebbe them two Injuns didn't understand me. We'll never know. O' Red Snout leaned over to pick up his gun, an' he'd made up his mind to fight. Jack grabbed him. He were stout as a lion an' tore 'way from the boy an' started to pullin' a long knife out o' his bootleg. Jack didn't give him time. They had it hammer an' tongs. Red Snout were a reg'lar fightin' man. He jest stuck that 'ere stump in the ground an' braced agin' it an' kep' a-slashin' an' jabbin' with his club cane an' yellin' an' cussin' like a fiend o' hell. He knocked the boy down an' I reckon he'd 'a' mellered his head proper if he'd 'a' been spryer on his pins. But Jack sprung up like he were made o' Inly rubber. The bulldog devil had drawn his long knife. Jack were smart. He hopped behind a tree. Buckeye, who hadn't no gun, was jumpin' fer cover. The peg-leg cuss swore a blue streak an' flung the knife at him. It went cl'ar through his body an' he fell on his face an' me standin' thar loadin' my gun. I didn't know but he'd lick us all. But Jack had jumped on him 'fore he got holt o' the knife ag'in.

"I thought sure he'd floor the boy," sez I, "but he was spry as a rat terrier. He dodged an' rushed in an' grabbed holt o' the club an' fetched the cuss a whack in the paunch with his bare fist, an' o' Red Snout went down like a steer under the ax.

"Look out! there's 'nother man comin'," the young wimmen hollered.

"She needn't 'a' tuk the trouble 'cause afore she spoke I were lookin' at him through the sight o' my o' Matier, which I'd managed to git it loaded ag'in. He were runnin' towards me. He tuk jest one more step, if I don't make no mistake.

"The o' brute that Jack had knocked down quivered an' lay still a minit an' when he come to, we turned him around an' started him toward Canady an' tol' him to keep agoin'! When he were 'bout ten rods off, I put a bullet in his o' wooden leg fer to hurry him erlong. So the wust man-killer that ever trod dirt got erway from us with only a sore belly, we never knowin' who he were. I wish I'd 'a' killed the cuss, but as 'twere, we had consid'able trouble on our hands. Right erway we heerd two guns go off over by the house. I knowed that our firin' had prob'ly woke some o' the sleepers. We pounded the ground an' got thar as quick as we could. The two wimmen wa'n't fer behind. They didn't calculate to lose us—you hear to me. Two young braves had sprung up an' been tol'd to lie down ag'in. But the Indian language ain't no help to an Injun under them circumstances. They don't understand it an' thar ain't no time when ignorance is more costly. They was some others awake, but they had learnt suthin'. They was keepin' quiet, an' I sez to 'em:

"If ye lay still ye'll be safe. We won't do ye a bit o' harm. You've got in bad comp'ny, but ye ain't done nothin' but steal a pair o' wimmen. If ye behave proper from now on, ye'll be sent hum."

"I love you and I wish this journey could go on forever."

Hunting Cheeta

For short distances the cheeta is supposed to be the swiftest quadruped. However, it is not possible to ascribe the honor definitely to any particular animal. The cheeta, which is found in Asia and Africa, is a large tropical cat, slender of body and limb. It is from three to four feet long and of a pale, tawny color, marked with numerous dark spots on its sides and back and almost white beneath. It resembles the leopard, and is often called the hunting leopard. The animal resembles the dog in docility. Its fur is not sleek like that of typical cats. It has a long tail, which is somewhat bushy at the end.

THE REIGN OF SAUL

LESSON TEXT—I Sam: 15:13-23.

GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice.—I Sam. 15:22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A King Who Disobeyed God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A King Who Lost His Kingdom.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Saul's Successes and Failures.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From Saul's Reign.

In order to properly present this lesson, a survey of chapters 8 to 15 of I Samuel should be made.

1. The People Demand a King (I Sam. 8:1-22).

(1) Samuel was incapacitated by old age.

(2) The unfaithfulness of his sons whom he had appointed as his successors. Samuel greatly blundered in this, for the office of judge was not hereditary.

(3) The desire to be like other nations. Since the surrounding nations had kings as leaders, they wanted a king who would fight their battles.

2. Samuel's Protest (vv. 6-18). He took the matter to the Lord in prayer and the Lord instructed him to solemnly point out to the people the meaning of their action.

(1) The king would make slaves of their daughters and make their sons to serve in his army and do all kinds of hard work on his farms and in his house.

(2) He would take their lands, even those inherited from their fathers, and give them to his favorite officers and servants. Not content with that, he would take the tenth part of their produce to give to his favorites.

3. Protest Disregarded (vv. 19-20). Having made up their minds, they deliberately shut their eyes to the truth and madly rushed into the experiment.

II. Saul Chosen as King (I Sam. 9:11).

1. The King Pointed Out (9:1-10:16). Saul was sent to search for his father's asses that had wandered away. While on this errand, Samuel found him and anointed him. Saul and his father were acting freely in this matter, yet at the same time God's purpose was being carried out.

2. The King Chosen at Mizpeh (10:17-27). Saul was chosen because of his fitness. If they would have a king, the Lord gave them the man best fitted for their needs.

(1) A fine physique. He was head and shoulders above the rest of the people.

(2) Modesty. (3) Self-control. (4) Military instinct.

The method of choice was by lot. When the choice was made, part of the people enthusiastically cried, "God save the king." Others mocked and refused allegiance.

III. The King Confirmed at Gilgal (I Sam. 11).

Saul took advantage of the great victory over the Ammonites to get all the people to crown him king.

IV. Saul's Failure (I Sam. 15).

This is one of the saddest pictures in all history.

1. The Command to Saul (vv. 1-3). He was commanded to utterly exterminate the Amalekites. The reason assigned was their evil treatment of Israel after they came up out of Egypt (Exod. 17:8; Deut. 25:17).

2. The Disobedience of Saul (vv. 4-9). The commandment was carried out only in part. Agag, the king, was spared, and the best of the goods appropriated.

3. Saul Rejected by God (vv. 10-25).

(1) Samuel cried to God (v. 11). The news of this disgraceful affair greatly disturbed Samuel, moving him to cry unto God day and night.

(2) Saul's hypocritical pretense (vv. 15-16). This pretense carried a lie upon its face. Though disturbed by a guilty conscience, he tried to conciliate Samuel, but the very bleating of the sheep and the lowing of the herds betrayed him. He then tried to put the blame upon the people.

(3) Samuel rehearses before Saul God's dealing with him (vv. 17-23). Samuel met his hypocrisy by bringing him to squarely face his sin. God is more concerned in having His subjects render obedience unto His commandment than He is for them to offer unto Him sacrifice.

4. The Judgment Upon Saul (vv. 26-35). For the presumptuous offering of the sacrifice, the dynasty passed from Saul's house, and for this act of flagrant disobedience, the kingdom was rent from him. He confessed his sin and begged Samuel to still honor him before the elders of the people. Samuel forsook him and left him alone to suffer in disgrace.

Public Service Co., To Spend Huge Sum Locally

The Public Service Company will expend approximately $1,077,000 in the Joliet district the coming year, was the announcement of Superintendent L. C. Stephens today based on the report to the annual meeting of the company's 21,419 stockholders held in Chicago.

"The Company's construction program for 1924 involves an expenditure of approximately $10,000,000 and of the amount which is to be expended in the Joliet district provision will be made for increasing of the equipment in the Joliet substation in order to secure additional features; and the installation of new automatic equipment at the Lockport and Lemont substations for the purpose of increasing the capacity and improving the reliability of service. It is estimated that $190,000 will be required to make the necessary short extensions of the electric distribution system together with transformers and meters in the district which includes Joliet and surrounding towns."

Mr. Stephens called attention to the installation of an additional 30,000 Kw turbo generator unit in the electric generating station located at Plaines as the outstanding feature of the construction work in this district during last year, stating that this unit increased the capacity of the station to 55,000 Kw.

"The Public Service Company's construction program for the year 1923 was materially in excess of that of preceding years", Mr. Stephens went on to say, "this having been made necessary by the large increase in the construction business throughout its entire territory and the total investment required to carry out these improvements was approximately $9,500,000." Mr. Stephens referred to the construction of the first unit consisting of 25,000 Kw at the new Waukegan generating station together with the steel tower transmission lines erected between Waukegan and Evanston to connect this station with the company's transmission system.

"In the way of gas mains 175,000 feet of six inch mains were laid together with numerous amounts of smaller sizes. A ten inch high pressure gas main has been installed between the Niles gas station and Park Ridge."

At Joliet, Ill., where the company acquired electric distribution systems and Chicago Heights where the company acquired the Chicago Heights Gas Co. The financial statement for the year reflects the company's prosperity. It shows that 1923 was the most successful in the company's history. The gross operating revenues amounted to $16,041,342.19 as against $13,712,094.90 in 1922. The earnings after charging $730,660 to retirement expense but before deducting interest and dividends, amounted to $4,508,077.59 as compared with $3,852,836.18 in 1922 an increase of $655,241.41.

The net earnings available for dividends were $2,434,394.30 as compared with $1,835,470.27 in 1922.

The company paid $1,080,000 in taxes during the year.

The new customers added during the year was 32,821 or equal to the population of the city of Bloomington, and the largest number in any one year in the company's history.

The total number of customers now is 252,981 of which 158,604 are for electricity, 87,197 gas, 6053 water, and 1,127 for heat.

Farmers Lose Millions of Dollars Through Smut

By Alfred Heiman

The smut that is found in this country on the oats, barley and corn are estimated to cause at least $25,000,000 loss to the farmers every year.

The oat smut of this section is becoming thick. There must be a check put on this destroying disease. The U. S. Government experiment stations have found a remedy that costs the farmer nothing. All the farmer has to do is to pour water heated to 130 degrees Fahrenheit over his seed oats and drain immediately. This kills all the disease which is on the seed oats.

For Farmers' Bulletin No. 939 explaining smuts write to Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

How Much Does It Cost to Borrow?

It all depends on how and where you borrow, as shown in this table of approximate rates compiled for the Journal of the American Bankers Association:

The above figures show that for the class of notes acceptable at a commercial bank, the rates charged are about 5 1/2 per cent, whereas for loans at a store they run as high as 36 per cent, and for chattel mortgages, 42 per cent. The rates given here represent the direct cost charged by the institutions named; in each case the total cost to the borrower is made slightly higher by indirect costs, such as stamp taxes, legal, brokerage or other fees. Thus the total cost to the borrower, who discounts his own note at a bank for 5 1/2 per cent, is 5.74 per cent due to deduction of interest in advance, stamp tax and computation on a 360 day basis. In the case of mercantile credit the total cost sometimes goes over 38 per cent and for chattel mortgages over 45 per cent. The above figures, however, give the comparative charges as made by the lending institutions themselves.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON V

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Why does not the banker pay savers as high interest on their money as he charges borrowers when he loans them that same money? Text books say he must charge more than he pays so as to meet overhead expenses, his unavoidable losses, and dividends.

J. H. Puelicher

OVERHEAD EXPENSES = cost and maintenance of the bank building, with costly equipment, such as steel vaults, so the depositors' money will be safe; light, heat, supplies, fire and theft insurance; taxes; and salaries to men and women employees of honesty and ability.

UNAVOIDABLE LOSSES = occasional unpaid loans made to those who have the misfortune to fail in business. Although bankers exercise great caution and are experts in judging business conditions and character, they sometimes have such losses. These must be met out of the gross profits from interest charged borrowers above that paid depositors—as fire insurance companies meet losses out of reserve funds created by careful investment of premiums.

DIVIDENDS = money divided among stockholders out of clear profits left over after overhead, losses and all other interests of the depositors have been fully taken care of.

Thus bankers pay depositors less interest on their savings than they charge the borrowers of those savings so that they can earn funds to meet the expenses of rendering efficient, careful and valuable services to the depositors.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ABOUT THE HOUSE MONEY

Aunt Emmy found Molly crying as if her heart would break. "What's the matter, Molly dear?" she asked, patting the bride's shoulder.

"Oh, Aunt Emmy, it's that horrid money. The household money is gone again, and I don't know where it went. I can't tell Ted, and yet I can't finish out the week. And I was going to save some every week, too!" she wailed.

"So that's it! It certainly does beat all how silly people are about money. Now stop crying, Molly, and tell me how much you are short this week."

"Ten dollars," sobbed Molly. "Dry your eyes and come out with me," comforted Aunt Emmy. "Everything will be all right. The bank is soliciting small accounts. I noticed they have thrift accounts, too."

"I don't care," sobbed Molly. "I can't have a bank account. No money."

"You are going to open both a household checking account and a thrift account. A thrift account can be opened with one dollar, and you must put aside a certain sum every week. You should save two dollars each week. Money that you once get your hands on is mighty hard to save, so when we go to the bank we will ask them to take two dollars out of your weekly household money deposit and put it in your thrift account. The thrift account will pay interest."

"But how can I keep my bankbook straight?" sighed Molly.

"You can add and subtract, can't you?" snapped Aunt Emmy. "You went to school, you know, and the bank will be glad to show you at first. Come on, Molly, let's be going."

At the bank Aunt Emmy gave Molly a check to start her account. "You can give this back to me at the end of the year, Molly. You can save it easily. Never buy by telephone. See everything for yourself. Keep accurate accounts, pay your bills promptly and don't carry money around with you."

When they came out of the bank Molly was the proud possessor of two pass books and a check book.

"I've always been afraid of banks," said Molly, "but I didn't know people in them could be so friendly. And besides getting things down in black and white this way will make it a lot easier to keep them straight. I just know it will!"

Aunt Emmy smiled knowingly. ANNE B. AYMES.

Thousands Thrilled By the Mighty "Ten Commandments"

Cecil B. DeMille's mightiest offering "The Ten Commandments" is now firmly established at Woods Theatre, Chicago as the greatest success of many seasons. All box office records have been shattered by this wonderful offering which has been called the "greatest show in the world". Every seat has been sold for every performance since the premiere and it has been found necessary to place tickets on sale four weeks in advance. Mail orders will receive prompt and careful attention.

The prices at nights and Saturday matinees are 50c, $1.00, $1.50 and daily matinees 50c, 75c, and $1.00. To this should be added the war tax of 10 per cent.

Never before have the Chicago critics so enthused over a great picture. The Evening Post said:

"The Ten Commandments" starts you by its impressiveness and grandeur. The most wonderful photoplay production ever made. We wish every man woman and child could see it."

Margaret Mann Crollius wrote in the Daily News: "How inadequate the poor descriptive weaklings, tremendous, stupendous, magnificent, costly, epoch-making, overwhelming seems when applied to 'The Ten Commandments'."

Ashton Stevens in the Herald Examiner said: "The Ten Commandments" is worth not only the money but the time."

Virginia Dale voiced her praise in the Journal as follows: "There never was a show like 'The Ten Commandments'. Exquisite excitement followed on the heels of itself. There can be no doubt that the Woods will house a great success with this production. There will be no moaning about the price. Its worth it."

Rob Reel in the American added this tribute: "If last night's capacity audience is any criterion 'The Ten Commandments' is going to capture Chicago. Agape at the spectacle unveiled before them the specta-

R. I. Adopts New Car Refrigerator System

A new system of ventilating refrigerator cars whereby perishable food products in transit can be preserved in first class condition indefinitely has been adopted by the Rock Island railroad. By this new system the gases and heat from perishable products are carried out of the top of the car by means of a special ventilator instead of being kept therein as heretofore, thus preventing moisture and mold from forming on such products as vegetables, berries, etc. when same are shipped a long distance.

A test made of this new refrigerator car system last year by the Rock Island showed that strawberries could be kept in first class condition as long as three weeks. All Rock Island dining car refrigerators have been equipped with this system. The system has been under test by the War Department at Washington in the shipping of meats, etc., and has been pronounced successful.

The SANDMAN STORY

BRUNO'S PEDIGREE

BRUNO, the farm dog, had lived there ever since he was a puppy, and for many years he had faithfully guarded his master's poultry and things in general, so it was no wonder that when one day a stranger dog came to the farm Bruno wished to know all about him.

The stranger had come on a visit with his mistress. He was a Pekinese and very proud he was of it.

"Good morning," said Bruno, wagging his tail, when the stranger came walking along the path that led by Bruno's house.

With a dignified stare the stranger tried to look over poor Bruno's head but he was too short for that so he just looked as if he did not see him. "You going to live here?" asked Bruno very friendly like. "I am the "Good Morning," said Bruno.

watch dog. Maybe I can help you to get acquainted with the other animals."

Still the stranger did not deign to reply but walked right by and for a minute poor old Bruno was undecided how to act. But he finally wagged his tail harder and trotted after the stranger.

"There are no other dogs here so you had better make friends with me," he said, getting in front of the other dog and dancing about a little. "What's your name? Mine is Bruno."

Finding his way blocked the stranger replied without looking at Bruno: "Chen Chang Ming is my full name. My mistress calls me Chang, but every one else gives me my full name."

"That's a funny name," replied Bruno. "Rover or Gyp is much more like a dog's name, I think."

"What is your pedigree?" inquired Ming.

Bruno stared and wagged his tail faster. He had never heard of a pedigree and did not know what it was.

"I was born in this country but my grandfather was born in a far off land," said Ming. "Who was your grandfather?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied Bruno.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHEN a bachelor's fear of designing women becomes a feverish apprehension, he rushes blindly in and takes a wife as a counter-irritant.

This is the time of year, when his majesty, Satan, hearkens to the vows with a cynical smile, and begins clearing space for a new stock of paving-stones to his little old Home Town.

Of course, a man can love two women a whole lot longer than he can love just one. Look at Solomon, who loved a thousand women. And nobody ever heard of his getting tired of any of them!

It takes a bride just about six weeks to get over rushing to telephone all the hospitals every time her husband is half an hour late, and to discover that there are other things besides sudden death which will keep him away from her.

By the time a man has succeeded in inducing a woman to wear brogans, straight hair, her own complexion and "sensible" clothes, he begins to wonder what on earth ever made him think he loved her.

A widow's fascination lies entirely in the fact that she is so much easier to understand, to talk to, to please, dancing about and trying to play with Ming.

"Don't know," exclaimed Ming, backing a little. "Oh, dear, I really can't associate with any one who hasn't a pedigree."

"Perhaps my master will get me one," said Bruno. "He is a very kind man."

"That is something you cannot buy," replied Ming, with a tilt of his nose. "I guess you never attended a dog show. I go every year and once I took a blue ribbon."

"Where is it?" inquired Bruno not knowing what else to say.

"Oh, another dog took it away from me last year but I hope to get it again next year," was Ming's reply.

"Just show me the dog that took it away from you," growled Bruno, showing his teeth. "You don't have to wait a minute for that ribbon if you want it. But I should much rather have a handsome collar around my neck than a ribbon."

"Really, you are quite impossible," replied Ming. "It seems you are not at all in my class. You know nothing of the world I live in." And holding his head very high Ming turned and walked toward the house where his mistress was calling from the doorway.

That night something happened. Ming was not at all sure what all the fuss was about, but the next morning he was shocked to see his mistress hugging Bruno and saying he was the best doggie in the world; he had saved her beautiful Pekinese and he should have the handsomest collar she could find in the city.

When Ming went down the path by Bruno's house that morning Bruno was snoozing in the doorway. "What was all the commotion about last night?" he inquired as Bruno up and danced in front of him.

"Oh, a thief came here and instead of stealing chickens as they usually do, this one sneaked up to the window of your mistress' room and was climbing in when I caught him by the seat of his trousers and pulled him back."

"Your mistress said he was after you and that I saved you. You see I haven't one of those pedigrees you talk

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

CURE FOR NOSE-BLEED

IN MANY sections of the country it is believed that wearing a red bean strung on a string around the neck will cure, or prevent, nose-bleed. This is a survival of primitive man's belief in sympathetic magic—specifically that part of it which is classified as homeopathic or imitative magic and which depends upon the law of similarity. The ancients worked this magic both ways. When it was a case of action in general it was a case of like causes like. But when it was strictly a curative process it was "like cures like."

This belief can be traced far back through the ages and prevails today among nearly all peoples who are in a primitive state. The old Greeks and Romans used to "cure" jaundice by means of the stone-curlew, whose large yellow eye, we are assured by Plutarch and Pliny, "drew out" the disease from the patient; and the German peasants today use red birds to "draw out" St. Anthony's fire or relieve patients flushed with fever.

Anything red or yellow is supposed to be beneficial in cases where the disease manifests itself by a like color. It will readily be seen, then, how a red about. I am just an old watchdog, but no one can get away with anything on this farm while I have my legs and teeth."

Ming began to wag his tail, then he danced about and the next minute Bruno and Ming were tumbling and rolling about on the ground playing as if there was no such thing as a pedigree in the world.

"You are a fine fellow even if you haven't a pedigree," said Ming, when they finished their play, "for my mistress would never hug a dog that was not worth something. I'll be back after dinner and we will play some more."

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

ELOISE

THOUGH purely English by adoption, Eloise is best regarded as a French name. It means "famous holiness," and comes into existence through the early Provencal Aloys, a masculine name in popular usage. Its feminine, Aloyse, soon came to be spelled Heloise, and received its initial fame through the lovely lady whose correspondence with Abelard was the theme of much sentiment.

The name was taken to Scotland by the archers, and reached England through the wife of the Norman William Mallet, who was called Hesilla, or Heloise. In France, Heloise suffered a temporary eclipse until Rousseau's romance "La Nouvelle Heloise" caused the name to be revived with greater popularity than before.

Eloise is the form preferred in Italy and it is more than probable that our Eloise is taken direct from that country rather than from the French Heloise, since the former is employed here with almost as great frequency as Eloise.

The diamond is Eloise's talismanic stone. It promises her mental and bodily strength and the courage to attain her heart's desire. Monday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number. The violet is her flower.

Will Your Family Be Happy This Spring?

If yours is one of the few remaining families lacking an automobile, no doubt you have finally decided to get one within the next four months.

A low-priced modern automobile like the Chevrolet has become indispensable to the family of ordinary income. A million other families can easily prove to you that the better way is with Chevrolet. The beauties of nature, the interesting and educational features of other places and ways of living, remain things to read about or seen dimly in cold photographs until you are free to get to them at your convenience and pleasure.

But, suppose you have definitely decided to buy a Chevrolet this spring. This does not necessarily mean you are going to get it. Anyone posted on conditions in the automobile business will tell you that thousands of families are going to be unable to get cars this spring. This has been true almost every spring for the last ten years. There are just two ways of making sure of getting your Chevrolet for use when the flowers and balmy breezes of spring lure you to the country roads—buy it now or order it now.

If you do not want to pay for it in full at this time, any Chevrolet dealer will arrange terms to suit your convenience. You will be surprised to learn how easy it is to pay for a Chevrolet and use it while you are paying for it.

Please realize these statements are made by us in good faith and we mean just what we say about the possible difficulties of getting a car delivered to you this spring if you wait until then to order it. The only way to be sure of a Chevrolet this Spring is to order it NOW.

Washington Sidelights

Professional Men on Income Taxation

WASHINGTON. — Organizations representing more than 500,000 professional men in the United States have joined forces to indorse and support the Mellon tax reduction plan from a nonpartisan point of view. Not the least significant aspect of the meeting was the fact that it resulted in the creation of a permanent organization which will act as a national clearing house of opinion and action on matters affecting the interests of professional people as a whole, a class that has hitherto not been organized in any way.

The new society is called the National Organization for Professional Co-operation. Professional societies represented at the meeting included the American Dramatists, the Actors' Equity, American Chemical society, American Institute of Chemical Engineers, American Medical Association, American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers, Artists' guild and the Authors' League of America. It is also stated that representatives of other organizations were present but could not take formal part in the movement as yet because the constitutions of their organizations required action at annual meetings or had similar restrictions on immediate action.

Among organizations not listed but said to have expressed sympathy with the general purposes of the meeting were the American Bar association, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Society of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, and the American Society of Civil Engineers.

The National Organization for Professional Co-operation will be a permanent organization, and its headquarters for the present will be the Authors' League of America, at 2 East Twenty-third street, New York.

The meeting adopted the following resolutions: "Resolved, That the National Organization for Professional Co-operation approve and indorse in principle the bill advocated by the secretary of the treasury for the revision of income taxes, and respectfully urge upon the congress of the United States its immediate passage."

"Resolved, That as professional workers, feeling that we have already been discriminated against during the nine years of the existence of the federal income tax, we emphatically protest against the proposal to limit the differentiation between earned and unearned income, because any limitation to the principle that the earned income of the individual should be treated on a different basis from unearned income is a discrimination against the best human effort of the individual, and as such is undemocratic and unjust."

Water Supply in the Oil Shale Industry

A REPORT on the "uses of water in the oil-shale industry," by J. J. Jakosky, has been made by the Department of the Interior through the bureau of mines.

"Any engineer making a trip through the oil-shale region of the Rocky mountain country will be struck by the fact that the water supply problem will have to be solved before an oil-shale industry of any considerable size can be started there," the report says. "The situation does not appear so serious to those who do not travel far from the main streams or arteries of travel, although even in these places it may cause thought. Only when one gets away from the railroads—and often that means visiting the richer shale deposits—does the magnitude of the water supply problem become fully evident. There are few large water courses, and these are generally far apart. Many of the smaller tributaries are periodic; they may be entirely dry part of the year, but roaring torrents during the rainy months."

"Those deposits situated on the main water courses may seem to be adequately supplied, or so situated that they may be adequately supplied, with water for development or production work. It must be borne in mind, however, that much of the water of these streams is already appropriated for agricultural or other uses, perhaps lower down on the stream, and that the amount of such appropriation may increase, as agricultural demands ordinarily take legal precedence over industrial requirements.

"At the present stage of the shale industry in this country it is almost impossible to state definitely the amount of water required for large-scale operations. The amount required known as to the possibilities of obtaining adequate water supplies by well drilling, but in many places the prospects do not look very favorable, for mining and crushing the shale will probably be similar in the coal-mining industry where similar conditions exist. The per capita domestic requirements for water will vary with the location of the plant and with local conditions. The most important use for water is in retorting and refining, but the amount that will be required for these purposes is more in doubt than that for power or domestic use."

"No standard retorting or refining practice for oil shale and shale oil has been established in the United States. Many retorting processes have been proposed, and perhaps twenty-five or thirty experimental or demonstration plants have been erected in different parts of the country. Practically without exception, however, these plants are too small to be considered as commercial, or to give operating data that would be of much value in estimating water requirements."

Japanese Sensitive on Race Question

SECTIONS of the immigration restriction measure, pending in the house, would operate to exclude Japanese from the country, and such exclusion would be "inconsistent" with treaty obligations with Japan, Secretary Hughes contends in a letter to Chairman Johnson of the house immigration committee, made public at the State department.

"The Japanese government has already brought the matter to the attention of the Department of State, and there is the deepest interest in the attitude of congress with respect to this subject," the letter added. "I am unable to perceive that the exclusion provision is necessary and I must strongly urge upon you the advisability, in the interests of our international relations, of eliminating it."

If a provision making certificates necessary for immigrants coming to the United States were made applicable to Japan, Secretary Hughes said, it would be possible to obtain active co-operation of the Japanese government and an arrangement could be perfected "involving a double control over the Japanese quota of less than 250 a year," which could enter the country.

Secretary Hughes called attention to the existing understanding between the two governments under which Japan undertakes to prevent immigration of laborers to the United States.

In connection with his opposition to the Japanese exclusion features of the bill, Secretary Hughes said:

"The Japanese are a sensitive people and unquestionably would regard such a legislative enactment as fixing a stigma upon them. I regret to be compelled to say that I believe such legislative action would largely undo the work of the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament, which so greatly improved our relations with Japan."

"The manifestation of American interest and generosity in providing relief to the sufferers in the recent earthquake disaster in Japan would not avail to diminish the resentment which would follow the enactment of such a measure, as this enactment would be regarded as an insult not to be palliated by any act of charity."

"The question is thus presented whether it is worth while thus to affront a friendly nation with whom we have established most cordial relations and what gain there would be from such action."

Secretaries Would Save the Public Land

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR WORK and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace have recommended to congress that the right of the Northern Pacific Railway company to acquire approximately 8,000,000 acres of government land in Idaho, Montana and Washington, under the terms of old land grants, be made the subject of an investigation by that body.

The two cabinet members have asked that a joint resolution be considered withholding the issuance of any further land patents to the Northern Pacific Railway company until after congress shall have made a full and complete inquiry into that company's land grants for the purpose of considering legislation to meet the respective rights of the railway company and the United States government.

This request was made in the form of letters to Senator Lenroot (Rep., Wis.), and Representative Sinnott (Rep., Ore.), respectively chairmen of the senate and house committees on public lands.

A resolution for an investigation was introduced in the house by Representative Sinnott.

The government land in question is mainly located within national forest areas in the states mentioned, and the railway company is asserting its claim to these lands under the provisions of the land grants made by congress on July 2, 1864, and May 31, 1870, commonly known as the Northern Pacific land grants. These grants were made for the purpose of aiding the railway company in the construction of its lines from Wisconsin to the Pacific coast.

Secretary Wallace, under whose direction all national forests are administered, contends that congress has authority to save most, if not all, of this national forest acreage to the government if it desires to investigate the entire matter and pass the necessary legislation.

Russian Chemist Makes Strong Wire From Salt

A wonderful discovery has been made by a Russian scientist, who claims to have found a method of making wire stronger than steel out of common rock salt. His discovery is the result of a series of extraordinary experiments in the mutability of metals by structural chemistry.

The scientist found that by submitting the rock salt to high heat pressure before the elementary crystals began to decay he arrested the decay by changing the structural arrangement of the atoms and molecules, and this change increased the durability and ductility of the substance 300 times, says London Tit-Bits. He is continuing his experiments with other metal substances.

If this discovery can be applied to metals it will revolutionize the world. It will mean, amongst other things, trains capable of running 200 miles an hour and turbine steamers that could reach Australia in ten days.

Metal Star Marks Spot

Where Abe Lincoln Stood

In front of Independence hall in Philadelphia, stands a statue of George Washington. It replaces the marble statue of the great American which was placed there by the contributions of the school children of Pennsylvania.

The weather was causing the marble to disintegrate and for that reason it had been removed to a corridor on the second floor of the city hall. On the sidewalk, near the new statue, in front of the cradle of liberty, is a metal star which marks the spot where Abraham Lincoln stood to raise a new American flag during the Civil war. The body of Lincoln reposed in state in Independence hall during the period when it was being conveyed to its place of judgment in Springfield. The bodies of Henry Pickens, John Quincy Adams and others were accorded similar honor.—Detroit News.

Nationwide Ownership

NATIONWIDE in the scope of its service, the Bell System is nationwide also in the distribution of its securities.

In street car, at church, at theatre, at grocery store counter you rub elbows with its owners.

They differ as widely in occupation and in wealth as do the more than 15,000,000 subscribers served by the system. But as Bell subscribers are united by a common means of inter-communication, so Bell owners are united by a common characteristic—thrift.

Other forms of thrift have very properly attracted the savings of thousands of Americans, but none of them more truly illustrates an investment democracy and none more directly serves the public.

Three hundred thousand persons have made common property of their savings in order to maintain this great national public utility.

Their dollars serve them and serve the nation.
